

Enrique González Martínez's Owl
Karlo Sevilla

The owl sees and writes:

Above, the black sky is pregnant, heavy with the full moon,
stars, and other bodies.

Below, by the azure fountain, the poet untangles two swans which necks he tied into a ribbon.

Liberated, they fly
moonward.